

UNSOLICITED APPLICATION

Lenzing Instruments is an internationally active company. In addition to the production and distribution of various laboratory testing devices for the industry, our focus lies on developing customized measurement systems tailored to our customers' needs for online monitoring of production processes. With our expertise, we also repair and inspect laboratory and analytical devices for our customers in accordance with current international standards.

With us, you can expect an attractive working environment in an internationally active company. We value personal responsibility, team spirit and commitment, offering exciting tasks in a motivated team with a flexible working time model. Even if we do not currently have any open positions, we are always happy to receive your unsolicited application. Show us what makes you stand out and become part of our success!
